Genocide and Humanitarian Intervention

Course Description:
This colloquium traces the history of genocide in the 20th century and the question of humanitarian intervention to stop it, a topic that has been especially controversial since the end of the Cold War. The pre-1990s discussion begins with the Armenian genocide during the First World War and includes the Holocaust and Cambodia under the Khmer Rouge in the 1970s. Coverage of genocide and humanitarian intervention since the 1990s includes the wars in Bosnia, Rwanda, Kosovo, and Darfur. The final sessions of the course will include discussion of the International Criminal Court and the separate criminal tribunals that have been tasked with investigating and punishing the perpetrators of genocide.

Course Readings:
Samantha Power, "A Problem from Hell": America and the Age of Genocide (2002).
Philip Gourevitch, We Wish To Inform You That Tomorrow We Will Be Killed with Our Families: Stories from Rwanda (1998).

For each class session, supplemental readings—mostly newspaper and magazine articles—will distributed in class or made available online. Each of these readings offers a present-day "hook" to the historical events covered in Samantha Power’s book and since its publication, from Armenia to Sudan.

Course Requirements:
The course is a colloquium, which means that class attendance and participation are especially important, counting for as much as 70% of the final grade. A central component of the course is a close reading and discussion of the assigned texts. There will be a short (8-10 pages) final paper whose topic, length, and format will be announced during the first weeks of the course.
